Class of 2013

William Francis Anderson

Trust in the Lord with all your
and lean not on your own understanding; in all your ways acknowledge him and he will make your paths straight.

-Proverbs 3:5-6

Anna Joy Brummel

Brothers and sisters, I do not consider myself yet to have taken hold of it. But one thing I do:
Forgetting what is behind and straining toward what is ahead, I press on toward the goal to win
the prize for which God has called me heavenward in Christ Jesus.

-Philippians 3:13-14

Joseph Alan Bultema

Therefore, I urge you, brothers, to offer your bodies as living sacrifices, holy and pleasing to God—this is your spiritual act of worship. Do not conform any longer to the pattern of this world but be transformed by the renewing of your mind. Then you will be able to test and approve what God's will is—his good, pleasing and perfect will.

-Romans 12:1-2

Jori Robyn Dekker

And this is the confidence that we have towards him, that if we ask anything according to his will he hears us.

-1 John 5:14

Bailey Elizabeth Heemstra

Keep your eyes open for God.
Watch for his works and be alert for signs of his presence.

-Psalm 105

Megan Lynn Hendrickson

Just as He who called you is holy, so be holy
in all you do.

-1 Peter 1:15

Class of 2013

Caleb J. Herrema

I will instruct you and teach you in the way you should go. I will counsel you and watch
over you.

-Psalm 32:8

Bryan David Hoekstra

Be on your guard; stand firm in the faith; be men of courage; be strong. Do everything in love.

-I Corinthians 16:13-14

Class of 2013

April Mary Hubers

As each has received a gift,
use it to serve one another, as good stewards
of God's varied grace.

-1 Peter 4:10

Rebekkah Leeah Jelsma

"Today you are you,
that is truer than true.
There is no one alive
who is youer than You."

-Dr. Seuss

Brittney Lawley

And we know that in all things God works for the good of those who love him, who have been called according to his purpose.

-Romans 8:28

Katy Long

For we are God's workmanship, created in Christ Jesus to do good works which God
prepared in advance for us to do.

-Ephesians 2:10

Brandon Maatman

But those who hope in the Lord will renew their strength. They will soar on wings like eagles; they will run and not grow weary,
they will walk and not be faint.

-Isaiah 40:31

Ashley Martin

For I am sure that neither death nor life, nor angels
nor rulers, nor things present nor things to come, nor powers, nor height nor depth, nor anything else in all creation, will be able to separate us from the love of God in Christ Jesus our Lord.

-Romans 8:38-39

Class of 2013

Stephen Patton

As the body without the spirit
is dead, so faith without deeds is dead.

-James 2:26

Francisco Javier Pineiro Rodriguez Lucero Monroy de Thorsden

God is our refuge and strength, an ever-present help in trouble. Therefore we will not fear, though the earth give way and the mountains fall into the heart of the sea, though its waters roar and foam and the mountains
quake with their surging.

-Psalm 46:1-3

Class of 2013

Benjamin Allen Postma

For it is by grace that you have been saved, through faith and this is not from yourselves; it is a gift of God, not by works, so that no one can boast.

-Ephesians 2:8-9

Sean Isaac Williams

-II Kings 2:23-24

Mitchell James Zeilenga

I can do all this through him who gives me strength.

-Philippians 4:13

Mikayla Ruth Zuidema

Whoever claims to live in him must walk as Jesus did.

-1 John 2:6

Senior Wills

Mikayla Zuidema - I will my love of all things music and acting to Caleb Zuidema, and my big mouth to Allison Eades, and my passion for success to every Covenant Student.

The End

I imagine goodbyes like the end of a movie. When all the seniors are at the very end of graduation the numbers of people in the gymnasium will start to dwindle. There will be a few families left talking to one another. I will probably be coming out of the bathroom and see one of my fellow graduates sitting on a bench. I will sit down to her or him and we will talk. This is when the slow somewhat happy piano music will start. In that moment we will talk about all of the great memories we have had, the random things Sean said, Mr. Dunham's old British lady voice, how we never got to watch The Patriot in class, saying "Why is she so mad?" and best of all "WINGZ!" This will go on for about ten minutes but will be, like, two in movie time. By the end we will both be crying from laughing so hard. After we settle down from laughing we'll start crying for real.

Our parents will come and interrupt us and tell us it's time to go. We will give each other a hug, say goodbye, and leave. As I'm driving home I'll have the windows down and the wind blowing in my face. Tears will run down my face as I realize that something great is over. There may have been times when I hated school or the people in it, but without it I wouldn't be the person I am today. Without it, how would I have met all of my amazing friends? I can't Imagine my life without them, but soon enough they'll be gone. They're going to make friends in college and become better friends with them than we ever were. It's sad to think that their lives will move on without me, and mine will move on without them. We have spent the majority of the Fall, Winter, and Spring together, many weekends and many Summer days.

Why does something good have to end? Why do we have to say goodbye to the people we care about? Sometimes I wish I could edit my life as a film so I could revisit all of the good times.

It would be around this reflection in this film that I would have an epiphany. The music would start again, but with violins and trumpets this time. It would get louder and louder. Other instruments would join in. I would stick my head out my car window and scream something into the wind. The music would slow down, the screen would fade, and the credits would roll.

As memories of us play out in my mind I realize that graduation won't be the end of all contact with my class. I may still see them throughout the summer, and we could still keep in contact through Facebook or texting.

Realistically, after graduation and all the open houses, we will have no reason to keep talking to each other. We won't share the common bond of going to the same school anymore. We are going off to completely different places, a few of us attending the same college, but the majority scattered. Wherever we are, we will become busy with our lives and begin to forget the smaller things about our class, with whom we had spent so much time. Then ten years down the road we probably won't be able to remember the names of everyone in our class. Faces will become blurred. We won't be able to remember if the things that someone did or said actually happened. Or maybe we just made it all up.

Sometimes I wish my life were a movie. Then I could have it end at part where I have an epiphany and I'm screaming out the window, exhilarated by an unknown future. I wouldn't have to deal with the sadness of saying goodbye for maybe the last time.

the 1990s, the number of people in the UK who are aged 65 and over has increased from 10.5 million to 13.5 million, and the number of people aged 75 and over has increased from 5.5 million to 7.5 million (Office of National Statistics 2000).

There is a growing awareness of the need to address the needs of older people in the community. The Department of Health (1999) has published a strategy for older people, which sets out a vision for the future of older people's services. The strategy is based on the following principles: older people should be able to live independently in their own homes; older people should be able to access the services they need; and older people should be able to participate in the decisions that affect their lives.

The strategy also sets out a number of key objectives for the future of older people's services. These include: to ensure that older people have access to the services they need; to ensure that older people are able to live independently in their own homes; to ensure that older people are able to participate in the decisions that affect their lives; and to ensure that older people are able to access the services they need.

the 1990s, the number of people with a mental health problem has increased by 50% (Mental Health Foundation 2000). The prevalence of mental health problems is also increasing in children and young people (Mental Health Foundation 2000).

There is a growing awareness of the need to address the needs of people with mental health problems. The Department of Health (2000) has set out a vision for mental health care in the UK, which is based on the principles of recovery, self-help, and community care. The vision is to ensure that people with mental health problems are able to live full and meaningful lives, and that they are able to contribute to society. The vision is also to ensure that people with mental health problems are able to access the services they need, and that they are able to participate in decisions about their care.

One of the key challenges in achieving this vision is to ensure that people with mental health problems are able to access the services they need. This is particularly true for people who are living in poverty, who are more likely to have a mental health problem and who are more likely to experience difficulties in accessing services. The Department of Health (2000) has identified poverty as one of the key factors that can lead to mental health problems, and it has set out a number of strategies to address this issue.

One of the strategies that the Department of Health has identified is to ensure that people with mental health problems are able to access the services they need. This includes ensuring that people are able to access mental health services, and that they are able to access other services that can help them to manage their condition. The Department of Health has also identified the need to ensure that people with mental health problems are able to participate in decisions about their care, and that they are able to access the services they need to live full and meaningful lives.
